Europe is doing it together!

PRIX EUROPA nominates 212 programmes for the 2015 competition

664 productions from 36 countries were submitted this year to compete for the title Best European Television-, Radio- or Online production. 212 of them were now nominated to take part in the PRIX EUROPA competition. The festival will take place from 17 until 23 October in Berlin. With up to a thousand participants it has become Europe's most important tri-media platform.

This year's content reflects all the themes that divide Europe these days – the economic crisis, the treatment of refugees or international war zones. However, when it comes to media production itself, Europe stands united! The European co-production – one of PRIX EUROPA's fundamental objectives - is on its way right to the top. Media cooperation crosses country- and EU borders. Last year's TV Fiction winner Czech Television, for example, is taking a French, German, Slovak co-production to Berlin this year. As many as six countries, were involved in the making of "The Queen Of Silence", a documentary about a deaf-mute Roma girl. Northern Europe with its strong tradition of cooperation is extending towards partners in Southern European countries. In radio another form of cooperation strikes the eye: here a Spanish production company shines with a radio play commissioned directly by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

PROMINENT AWARD WINNERS

Twelve proud winners will each take away a bronze Taurus Trophy - among them an outstanding personality from the European media world who is lauded for his lifetime achievement. The latter follows in prominent footsteps: the BBC-legend Sir David Attenborough, Ingolf Gabold, creative mastermind behind numerous award-winning Danish television serials, as well as the German film producer Regina Ziegler have recently been honoured with the PRIX EUROPA Lifetime Achievement Award.

GALA AWARD CEREMONY IN BERLIN

The prizes are endowed with 6000 Euros each and will be awarded on the 23rd October in the rbb-Haus des Rundfunks in Berlin. Award sponsors include among others the Federal Foreign Office of Germany and the European Commission. PRIX EUROPA is organised by an Alliance of 30 European institutions, comprising several broadcasters under the patronage of the European Broadcasting Union. The President of the festival is Roger de Weck, Director General of the Swiss Broadcasting Corporation SRG SSR.
